The Summer Transition Tasks

1. Well done for being interested in taking Geography, a subject that will help you contextualize the fascinating world you find yourself in right now. The tasks below give you the opportunity to hit the ground running ready for September and will no doubt wet your appetite as to what to expect to learn about during the A Level in Geography!
2. Read the Guide to the Index of Multiple Deprivation - <https://esriukeducation.maps.arcgis.com/apps/Cascade/index.html?appid=3c16c360b5704192a550f844b13ffb0a> This is really very interesting and a challenge in terms of stepping up from GCSE
3. Get going with your wider reading for A level Geography using the attached Migration reading list. Be selective or read them all. Use them as the base of where you take your reading next.
4. Watch Migration based TED talks. See final links on attachment.

How the work produced will fit into subsequent work and the specification as a whole.

In year 12 you will investigate the Index of Multiple Deprivation in the compulsory Changing Spaces, Making Places unit for Paper 2 (Human Geography). You may also decide to use it to form the direction of your Non Examined Assessment (Coursework) project which is worth 20% of your overall grade.

In Year 12 you will also study Migration (again for paper 2) this is a most contemporary unit that looks at some very huge, very civilisation shaping issues.

How the work will be assessed and marked:-

We will expect to see the result of this work in the written and verbal answers you provide in lessons and in homework straight from September.

Success criteria for this challenge:-
