

Department of History Schools Day – Monday 24 April 2023

6th form Historians took part in the University of Essex Schools Day. This was a series of lectures on topics of real interest to our students. The day was useful for revision as students will begin their exams very soon. Highlights included a lecture on the Reformation by Professor Alison Rowlands, a lecture on The Wars of the Roses by Dr Thomas Freeman and talks on careers with a History degree and how to carry out research using the University library.
